

Triton Sophomore Scholars Student Consent Form

Congratulations! We are happy to accept you to the Triton Sophomore Scholars Program of the University of California, San Diego. One of the critical goals of the Triton Sophomore Scholars Program is to provide a summer experience, which offers academic, social, personal, and professional development. The faculty and staff of the program want to make sure each student has every opportunity possible to take full advantage of what this program has to offer. To achieve this goal, it is essential that we assure a positive living and learning environment and encourage productive interaction between the student participants, the college faculty and staff, and provide the opportunity for students to develop collegial, student-to-student relationships.

Currently, completion rates of program prior participants are equal to or above the University average. Factors most important to the program's success are that it is delivered by faculty, professional staff, and peer mentors in a manner that is personal, extended (support is offered through both summer sessions and the upcoming academic year), and collaborative (weekly peer mentoring, weekly study skills and interactions with faculty, to name a few areas) to further develop an understanding of the expectations of college work in an intensive summer session and for future terms).

This college program supports two, five-week courses, one each in summer session 1 and 2. The following guidelines are required of all students to achieve academic success in their chosen courses.
